FROM THE PASTOR'S DESK:

In today's Gospel reading, John the Baptist refers to Jesus as the "Lamb of God," a title rich in meaning.

Today, when two people enter an agreement, they usually draw up a contract and sign it to make it official. In ancient times, this couldn't happen because most people weren't able to read and write. Neither party could read the document nor sign it. How did ancient people seal their agreements?

The answer to this question is that they made their agreements official by going through a little ceremony. They slaughtered animals, split them in two, and then walk between the two of them as a dramatic way of saying that if they weren't faithful to the terms of the agreement, may the same thing happen to them that happened to the animals. Periodically, they renewed the agreement with the similar ceremony.

Although the ceremonies different somewhat with time and place, the one feature they all had in common was that they involved the shedding of the blood of an animal. Because ancient people believed blood was the source of life, the blood of an animal gave life to the agreement. Without the shedding of blood, the agreement was meaningless.

The early Christians believe they had an agreement with God, an agreement that, like a marriage, produced a very close and loving relationship. We call such an agreement a covenant.

The early Christians call Jesus "the Lamb of God" because his blood sealed the covenant between them and the Father. Jesus was the "animal" (the lamb) whose blood gave life to the very close and loving relationship between God and Jesus' followers. The crucifixion was the ceremony that made this covenant official and it's Jesus' blood that renews the covenant each time we celebrate the Eucharist. Jesus is the Lamb who was slain to make possible our close and loving relationship to God.

Just as it takes much effort to make a marriage work, our covenants relationship with God also requires effort. What will we do to make our relationship with God grow stronger? This weekend we remember as a country the life, contributions, and sacrifice of Dr. Martin Luther King. Words can't begin to describe the phenomenal changes that took place under his prophetic leadership. Most of us remember his profound impact on the way race was and is perceived in our country. Dr. King truly exemplified nonviolent resistance to a corrupt and racist society. We honor his work and his life by being witnesses to his faith and ours by living a life of truth, justice, equality, and peace.

One of the many legacies that the work of Dr. King left us is the election of President Barack Obama. Many of us who watched last week's Farewell address were elated and proud of the accomplishments achieved under his presidency. Many of us also noted the particular rancor and hatred directed towards him by a fairly small but quite vocal portion of our country who have not quite gotten used to having an African-American as our president. Their voices have become more strident and vitriolic over the past few years, resulting in election last November. I pray that we will fight ardently and resist that hatred by stridently opposing legislation and officials that promote such bigotry and prejudice.

St. Benedict begins our annual Black History Month, which extends from this weekend throughout the month of February. We have a number of our St. Benedict parishioners who will be speaking as part of our celebration series.

I am grateful to the outgoing Parish Council for their support and dedicated service to St. Benedict parish: Clifford Ologbosele (chair), Angela Anderson (vice-chair), Linda Palmeri (secretary), Nat Bornor, Wallita Sykes-Bush, Theresa Butler, Ariana Catherine, Mr. Rufus Fisher, Sherril Gressel, Gloria McCullough, Janie Outley, Sylvia Parker, Leonard Pete, Deacon Ron Tutson, Ofelia Wanzo. These fine folks were instrumental in helping to facilitate the pastoral transition between me and your beloved former pastor, Jay Matthews. For that, I will always be grateful.

Congratulations to the incoming Pastoral Council consists of the following St. Benedict parishioners: Ariana Catherine, Dionne Cola, Sidney Fernandes, Ruben Flores, Jules Garibaldi, Romel Lucas, Emma Morton, Leonard Pete, Linda Smith, JayLynn St. Julian, Tara Sykes-Holmes, Dr. Chiquita Tuttle, Ofelia Wanzo. These members were selected through a discernment process led by Chuck Siebenand, former Director of Pastoral Planning for the Diocese of Oakland.

God bless,
Father Jayson

ANNOUNCEMENTS
