FROM THE PASTOR'S DESK:

Today's Gospel is a continuation of last week's reading. Again, Jesus answers the charge that he is teaching his followers to disregard the Jewish law. In response, Jesus shows he demands even more than what the law demands.

The quotation about taking an eye for an eye and a tooth for tooth is from Exodus 21:24 and is one of the most misunderstood passages in Scripture. Although people usually quote it when trying to justify revenge, its original purpose was to prevent unjust punishments by placing limits on the penalty imposed on a convicted criminal. So the authorities could not put the guilty party to death for knocking out someone's tooth. The worst thing they could do to him was to knock out his tooth also. So this passage was never intended to be a recommendation about what a punishment should be but only a limitation on what it could be. The punishment could never exceed the crime.

Although the law permits revenge, Jesus does not advocate it. In explaining that his followers should not offer a resistance to injury, Jesus says they should give not only their shirt to someone who wants it but their coat as well. The coat was an outer garment a person slept in at night. Although Palestinian days were usually warm, the temperature often dropped dramatically after the sun went down. The coat was all the poor man had to keep him from freezing at night and it was so important that, according to Jewish law, if a man gave his coat as collateral for a loan, the lender was supposed to return it to him before nightfall so he wouldn't freeze to death.

In his preaching, Jesus sometimes use exaggeration, an accepted Near Eastern teaching technique, to stress an important point. Jesus' comments in today's Gospel about giving up one's coat and in last week's Gospel about gouging out one's eyes if they are a source of temptation are examples of exaggeration. So in today's reading Jesus is not saying that his followers should deliberately expose themselves to physical harm but that they are to forgo any revenge they might be entitled to and should even be willing to put up with injustice for the sake of the reign of God.

It is difficult for us to respond to hate with love but that is what Jesus is asking of us in today's Gospel. If there is someone in our life we hate, we are challenged to go out of our way to do something nice for that person.

As you are reading this bulletin, I am at the FBI (Federal Bureau of Investigation) Academy in Quantico, Virginia. As I have mentioned before, I serve as a chaplain for the FBI's San Francisco Division, and this position (in which I am considered a non-paid employee of the FBI), I am obliged to serve as the in-service resident chaplain for the FBI Academy on an almost annual basis, usually for a 10 days to a two week stint. I am present to those training to be FBI Special Agents, as well to other non-sworn FBI staff personnel who are at Quantico for further advanced development. I'll let you know how that went when I return.

We continue to celebrate Black History Month, with St. Benedict parishioner Ray Leon providing our reflection after the Gospel during Mass. As many of you already know, Ray is a long-time parishioner who also serves as a policy analysis for the City of Oakland. He is also a fellow Saint Mary's College High School (Berkeley) alum, and he and his parents Sadie and Claudell attend the 8:30 AM Sunday liturgies. Good to have you addressing us, Ray!

Just to let folks know, Fr. Paul Vassar has been appointed as the Temporary Parochial Administrator of the Catholic Community of Pleasanton (St. Augustine and St. Elizabeth Seton Churches) for the next few months. Their current pastor will be on a medical / personal leave for an undetermined period of time, so I don't know how long Fr. Paul will be away assisting in Pleasanton. He intends to continue assisting with the Monday morning weekday Masses, but he will be unable to be present on weekends for the near future. Fr. Paul intends to return to St. Benedict once Fr. Paul Minnehan returns to his Pleasanton parish. Please pray for both Father Paul and for the Catholic Community of Pleasanton.

God bless,
Father Jayson
